

Sinclair Broadcasting's is forcing their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election. This does not serve the community. This is clear political propaganda, and not what serves the public. Serving the public interest would be showing both sides of the story - anti-Kerry and pro-Kerry (eg "Going Upriver") or anti-Bush and pro-Bush. Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and should be obliged to give non-politically biased reporting and programming. Obviously, there needs to be some strengthening of media ownership rules, because there must be some big bucks dictating this decision. Thank you.
